Do you want to start a career in construction?

Construction Career Pathways may be the opportunity you've been waiting for.

Launched by BuildForce Canada, Construction Career Pathways is a new program that provides 16 weeks of entry-level employment in the dynamic and growing construction sector.

Help wanted

Construction services are in high demand. From new homes to public transit, and hospitals to the electrified economy, construction builds Canada. Activity in our sector is already at or near record levels, and it is only expected to grow further as Canada works to meet its net-zero targets.

Construction Career Pathways can prepare you for an exciting career in the industry through training, experience, and paid employment in a wide range of jobs across the construction sector, many of which are pathways to high-paying careers in the skilled trades.

Our program is ideally suited for:

- women and others from equity-deserving groups, including members of Black, Indigenous, and racialized communities, persons with disabilities, LGBTQ2+ community members, and newcomers to Canada who want to work in construction
- young people seeking work experience
- individuals looking for employment or looking to change careers

Don't delay!

Construction Career Pathways is currently accepting applications, with placements beginning as soon as spring 2023.
